1.4.97

a Lesson in the University of The New Covenant

Theodore Cottingham, February 23, 2006 2pm leaving Nordaggio's

www.unc.bz

1. Who can see the hand of my beloved in my beloved?
Who can see my hand in my hand?
Who can see my heart in my heart?

2. Who can see what I am doing with my hand in my heart in my beloved, and who cares to know and be a part of; not afar off, but yea close, and close being: nearing and being, and being near and close and one and the same, be near and afar; one, also. Yea see. Reticent not be. Achieve, yea attain; all is process: surrender. I love you.

3. I give you me; many prayer warriors, standers, seekers, surrenderers; not afraid-ers, who not-afraid others now in the leadership revolution of only me; crystal clear truth coming flowing from yea my throne, in my throne. Watch me and enjoy all I am saying/have said. Seeing, be; and yea all reticency not, but yea all in my residencies are.

4. I love you and I give you me. This day is yours. Grasp not with the tentacles of man/man's thought/ways of inherent darkness; but yea life and light and preciousness being tenderness, sensitivity, completeness complete. Amen.

5. Thank you for picking up your recorder more and often; and yea now the beginning of transcriptionists/linkages, yea of only me and manner not seen; formed. I love you.

Good day